PROFILE

I'm a mixed-media designer-maker based in Manchester inspired by graphic shapes, clean lines and urban textures. I often combine CAM techniques, particularly the Laser Cutter, with more traditional metal-smithing skills, in order to celebrate my chosen materials and to create metal and mixed-media objects to ornament the home and the body.

I am a driven, committed individual, with a passion for hand-made processes and craft objects. I am always keen to broaden my skill set in the creative industry; down the lines of both the product/object side and the business side.

WORK EXPERIENCE

Ella McIntosh - Manchester Craft and Design Centre [2019]

With Ella, I developed traditional processes like bowl rasing, cuttlefish casting and soldering.

Wentworth Pewter [2019]

My time at Wentworths allowed me to professionalise my pewtersmithing skills, working on pieces or comissions for them. Here, I gained sills on larger machinery, including the spinning lathe and a centrifuge casting machine.

Franklyns Jewellers and Goldsmiths [2015 - 2017]

A working jewellers and goldsmiths, Franklyns was allowed me to begin my creative career, in designing comissioned CAD pieces and also novelty pieces for social media. This is where I began honing in traditional metal-smithing techniques, and witnessed for the first time how modern technologies like 3D printing could be used in the metal-craft world.
